Canadian consumer confidence remains positive and near the 2014 average (September 12th, 2014)

The Bloomberg Nanos Canadian Confidence Index stood at 58.76 points out of 100 in the latest weekly tracking. This stands very near the 2014 average on the BNCCI which was 58.87 points.

The BNCCI, a composite of a weekly measure of financial health and economic expectations, registered at 58.76 compared with last week's 59.10. The Bloomberg Nanos Pocketbook Index is based on survey responses to questions on personal finances and job security. This sub-index was at 59.69 this week compared to 60.82 the previous week. The Bloomberg Nanos Expectations Index, based on surveys for the outlook for the economy and real estate prices, was at 57.83 this week (compared to 57.38 last week).

The average for the BNCCI since 2008 has been 57.20, with a low of 43.28 in December 2008 and a high of 62.92 in December 2009. The index has averaged 58.87 this year.

"Positive impressions of real estate are marginally below the 2014 average," said Nanos Research Group Chairman Nik Nanos. "This is a key forward indicator to be monitored because the perceptions of real estate have been a key driver of confidence."

"The post-Lehman increase in overall Canadian consumer confidence has undoubtedly been fueled by the upsurge in the equity market, the energy boom, and the recovery in the housing market. The surveys suggest, however, an unequal distribution of wealth effects, especially from the latter two, with the Prairies benefiting from the regional economic boom and homeowners reacting to expectations for the value of their primary asset," said Robert Lawrie, Bloomberg Economist.

The BNCCI is a diffusion index comprised of the views of 1,000 Canadians. A score of 50 on the diffusion index indicates that positive and negative views are a wash while scores above or below 50 suggest net positive or net negative views in terms of the economic mood of Canadians. The data is based on perceptions related to personal finances, job security, economic strength, and real estate value.

About the Bloomberg Nanos Canadian Confidence Index

The Bloomberg Nanos Canadian Confidence Index (BNCCI) is a weekly measurement of the economic mood of Canadians on the strength of the economy, job security, real estate in their neighbourhood, and their personal financial situation. It is a composite of those variables and has two sub indices: a Bloomberg Nanos Expectations Sub-index on forward views; and, Bloomberg Nanos Pocketbook Index on their personal economic situation. The longitudinal data on the index begins in 2008 and is a significant data source for decision-makers.

Methodology

Methodology

The BNCCI is produced by the Nanos Research Corporation, headquartered in Canada, which operates in Canada and the United States. The data is based on random telephone interviews with 1,000 Canadian consumers (land- and cell-lines), using a four week rolling average of 250 respondents each week, 18 years of age and over. The random sample of 1,000 respondents may be weighted using the latest census information for Canada. The interviews are compiled into a four week rolling average of 1,000 interviews where each week, the oldest group of 250 interviews is dropped and a new group of 250 interviews is added. The views of 1,000 respondents are compiled into a diffusion index from 0 to 100. A score of 50 on the diffusion index indicates that positive and negative views are a wash while scores above 50 suggest net positive views, while those below 50 suggest net negative views in terms of the economic mood of Canadians.

A random telephone survey of 1,000 consumers in Canada is accurate 3.1 percentage points, plus or minus, 19 times out of 20. This report is based on the four waves of tracking ending September 12th, 2014.

The following questions are used for the index calculations:

- Thinking of your personal finances, are you better off, worse off, or has there been no change over the past year? (Overall Confidence Index and Pocketbook Sub-Index)
- Would you describe your job, at this time, as secure, somewhat secure, somewhat not secure, or not at all secure? (Overall Confidence Index and Pocketbook Sub-Index)
- In the next six months, do you think the Canadian economy will become stronger, weaker, or will there be no change? (Overall Confidence Index and Expectations Sub-Index)
- In the next six months, do you believe that the value of real estate in your neighbourhood will increase, stay the same or decrease? (Overall Confidence Index and Expectations Sub-Index)
