Other reasons cited for being proud of being a Canadian included social values, such as education and healthcare (six per cent), family (five per cent), rights and freedoms (four per cent), safety and gun control (four per cent), as well as love of nature, the outdoors and the environment (two per cent).
- Top Canadian values are right and freedoms, respect for others and kindness and compassion – Asked to describe the top three Canadian values to someone who was not Canadian, 16 per cent of responses related to rights and freedoms, followed by respect for others (12%) and kindness and compassion (11%). Other values mentioned included multiculturalism, diversity and bilingualism, as well as social values such as education and healthcare with nine per cent each. Equality, equity and social justice, and tolerance and acceptance received eight per cent of mentions respectively.

These observations are based on an RDD dual frame (land- and cell-lines) hybrid telephone and online random survey of 1,000 Canadians, 18 years of age or older, between September 24th and 27th, 2016 conducted by Nanos Research as part of an omnibus survey. Methodology

Methodology

Nanos conducted an RDD dual frame (land- and cell-lines) hybrid telephone and online random survey of 1,000 Canadians, 18 years of age or older, between September 24th and 27th, 2016 as part of an omnibus survey. Participants were randomly recruited by telephone using live agents and administered a survey online. The results were statistically checked and weighted by age and gender using the latest Census information and the sample is geographically stratified to be representative of Canada.

Individuals were randomly called using random digit dialling with a maximum of five call backs.

The margin of error for a random survey of 1,000 Canadians is ± 3.1 percentage points, 19 times out of 20.
